TIDINGS OF THE MANISTEE.

Delevis, Minn., Dec. 8.—Mr. Cariton tiser's editors have been: "Nonh Web-as received a letter from a friend who was ster, 1797 to 1803; Zachariah Lewis, has received a letter from a friend who was a passenger on the fated Manistee. "When the boat went out," the letter says, "we encountered a very keavy gale from the southwest, and when about twenty miles out the boat was put about, but could not make it. The life-boats were taken out, but before they were launched all but one were swept away in the storm, and only nine persons who were on the beat were allowed to get in. We had a terrible time. After the boat west down there was nothing but a wide expanse of water before us. We rolled around on the turbulent waves cold, wet and hungry for three days, and one by one the waits dropped off, death having come to their relief. Some of them were frozen to death, while some dead from the content of the wind content of the wind. were frozen to death, while some died from sheer exhaustion and exposure to the wind. Captain McKay never left the boat, but wrapped himself up in his heavy evercoat and remarked: 'I will never leave the boat until the best soul is off. I am Captain of this boat, and if she is a coffin for anybody she will be my coffin.' After the men had left the boat the Manistee made one plunge under the waves, and that was the last of her. When we left the vessel there were the crew and ten or eleven passengers on board, and out of those who started out in the boat only three were saved and reached Houghton. The wreck occurred off Eagle Harbor, and there was no possible chance of saving the vessel innder the circumstances. At the last, when everybody knew there was no hat, when everybedy knew there was no hope, Capt. McKay gave his orders just as cool and collectedly as if he was on land."

A body floated near the shore at Pigeon River, and fruitless endeavors were made to secure it. It is supposed to be a corpse from the Manistee, but was not identified in any way.

Dysentery and scurvy he says are prevalent, and the doctors are afraid to touch the patients. Few medicines were prescribed, and when ordered were generally countermanded. The prisoners, the letters says, ret away and exhale odors of dead bodies before life is extinct.

The number of those who go mad in consequence of their sufferings is daily increasing, the madmen being strapped down and whipped with the knowt by the keepers. Fierce yells resound throughout the night, and many of the prisoners have committed smickle. It is said one woman was outraged and then poisoned.

snielde. It is said one woman was outraged and then poisoned.

Rats are the worst enemies of the prisoners. A woman with her young babe was obliged to be constantly on the watch and fight night and day to prevent the rats from devouring the child. The use of combs and scap is forbidden, and the prisoners, especially the women, whose hair is allowed to grow, are literally devoured by vermin. The jailers are only kind to those having money. The prisoners who refuse to reply to questions are tortured, and cases of the violation of women are frequent. The writer especially appeals to the civilized world in behalf of the women in the prison, whose situation, he says, is far worse than half of the men.

BLAZE IN A SLEEPING CAR.

Thoy, N. Y., Dec. 8.—At one o'clock yesterday morning, while the late New York Houd was passing a point a short distance south of Castleton, fire was discovered in the sleeping-car attached to the train. The flames were first noticed in the ladies' flames were first noticed in the ladies' parior. The train was run into Castleton and stopped, and the passengers were hurried out of the burning car. All escaped injury with the exception of one man, who was terribly roasted in his berth. He was taken to the hotel, where he now lies in a dying condition. His name is not known. Another man lost his hat, in which he had placed $150. The fire department was called out. The flames were extinguished after the cur had been almost rulend. There were tweive passengers asleep in the car when the fire was discovered, and the utmost consternation prevailed. Four of the passengers were asleep and were almost suffocated by the smoke before aroused. The doors of the car were and were almost suffocated by the smoke before aroused. The doors of the car were found locked, and the windows fastened down. An ax was obtained and an opening cut through the side of the car by which escape was effected. Two men were somewhat bruised and so overcome by smoke that it was deemed best to leave them in a hotel at Castleton. P. G. Murphy, of Buffalo, agent of the Nickel-Plate Italizoad, was also hurt, but not seriously.

designs. A bridal veil of duchesse and of point gauze, with orange blossoms and and roses and lilies combined in the design, may be added to such a set, and this is in shape like a great scarf a yard and a quarter wide and more than three yards long, and may afterward be used for drapery on satin or velvet skirts. Bridesmaids' veils are most often of Spanish laces, and are only two and a half or three yards long, and cost from $20 to $40.

In black laces the hand-run Spanish lace is much liked for fichus, scarfs to irape as vosts, and as trimming laces, but the Escurial lace with the design outlined with a cord is the favorite. There are also many of the Spanish rulpure laces with the silk designs outlined with chemilic cord; this is not consined to black, but is shown in colors itso, such as golden brown, Titian red, and gray laces, at $3 a yard, with fichus to match, for $6.50. The imitations of plack thread lace are so line that they are bought for trimmings by the most lastidious women. — Harper's Bazur.

A very interesting discussion upon solar theories was held at the second day's session of the National Academy of Sciences, at New Haven. It was based upon the reports of Prof. Holden and Dr. Hastings upon the solar eclipse of May 6 of the current year. The observations were taken at Caroline Island, and the conditions were favorable.
